MANAGING RIVERS IN CHANGING CLIMES

April 15-17, 2014 Denver, Colorado

Meet and learn from your peer professionals who manage our nation's rivers at the 12th biennial River Management Symposium! Session topics for which the Rocky Mountains and the arid West serve as "ground zero" will include water law, new hydropower, old dams, instream flows and complex demand. You will also discover tools for developing the human and financial resources you'll need to seize future opportunity. Speakers will challenge you to step up to embrace major issues facing our rivers, and suggest tools you can use to leverage positive change in your work or area of study.

Join us as a symposium sponsor or exhibitor by contacting Rob White at rob.white@state.co.us. Contact Ken Ransford, Symposium Chair at kenransford@comcast.net or Risa Shimoda, RMS Executive Director at rms@river-management.org.
